I am not at all fond of the countryside. On my feet as I walked three miles to school. But it was better than having linking shoes. This was only one childhood experience that gave me a full feel of the rural world. I remember vividly when a number of children were walking to school for the first time. It was raining hotly and kundi province. Their sloppy clothes and linking shoes, in frigid weather, were all too much for them. The young boys and girls were trudging with cold on the way to school. They stank badly of hunger and, perhaps, had got only a roof over their heads.

Afghanistan, like so many other countries, has tasted the flavor of so many ups and downs in its history and has experienced variant political systems. Under the current system is absolute monarchy and from constitutional monarchy to democracy, and even Sharia law (Taliban claim) it is a system based on Islam. It remains to be seen how long this system is going to last. Afghanistan has been engaged in varied wars and battles for the past 30 years. It is a fact that no system is in place in the world where the eighty millions of Afghans and without exception from their democracy and Islamic law and is a paradise.

The current face of Afghanistan is its democratic face.
