WASHINGTON - Having just ended the combat mission and transitioned to a smaller, less formal role, the United States is now focused on the goal of a sovereign and stable partner in Afghanistan that is not a safe haven for international terrorists, US President Barack Obama said in his national security strategy, sent to the Congress on Friday.

"Our counterterrorism approach is so weak with several states, including Somalia, Al-Qaeda, and Iraq. In Afghanistan, we have ended our combat mission and transitioned to a dramatically smaller force focused on the goal of a sovereign and stable partner in Afghanistan that is not a safe haven for international terrorists," said the National Security Strategy. This has been made possible by the extraordinary sanctions of US military forces, as well as the very expensive reprogramming and international sanctions. They delivered. \[More on P 19.\]

Balk-Kunduz Highway Completion of the vital Balk-Kunduz Highway would lower travel time for economic activities and attract trade activity to the north and northwest areas, officials said.

The governors of Balkh and Kunduz expressed their pleasure at the completion of the highway, saying it would attract business and tourism to the region.

The highway, which is 120 kilometers long, connects the two provinces, providing a faster route for trade and tourism.

A number of officials, including transportation minister, were present at the inauguration ceremony.

Smuggler Held with 2882 Drugs

CHIKU CITY, South Afghanistan: Smugglers were arrested and drugs were seized from a vehicle on Friday.

The police said that they had launched a joint operation and intercepted the vehicle on the outskirts of Chikuh city.

The drugs were said to be bound for neighboring provinces and the operation was conducted in coordination with the Ministry of Counter-narcotics.

Arsenio-based gangs have been operating in the area and the police have stepped up their operations to disrupt their activities.

Arms and Islam and Iran to Fight ISIS in the Region!

A rmed forces and Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIS) are both fighting to gain control of territory in the region. The conflict has become a major concern for the United States and other countries in the region, as both sides are seen as threat to global security. The United States has been providing military aid and training to the Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF), an alliance of Kurdish and Arab rebels fighting against ISIS. The SDF has been making significant gains against the ISIS, who have lost control of large swaths of territory in Syria and Iraq. The conflict is also having a significant impact on the civilian population, with hundreds of thousands of people displaced and facing severe humanitarian needs. The United States and its allies are working to prevent the spread of ISIS and to provide assistance to those affected by the conflict.

The Flagrant Violation of Women Rights

W omen have been the vulnerable part of our society within different regions, yet they suffer painfully. In Karzai’s Afghanistan, women had a singular role of being victims of society. The warlords, feudal lords, warlords and warlords… The women had to suffer from these men who ruled the country. In this context, the situation of women in Afghanistan is still not much better. Women are still facing violence and discrimination in many areas of their lives. The government and the society need to take responsibility for the protection of women’s rights. Women have a right to be treated equally and fairly, and their voices need to be heard.

The killing of women in Afghanistan is not only a violation of their human rights, but also a violation of basic principles of Islam. The Quran and Sunnah clearly state that women have the right to live in peace and security, and that men have the responsibility to protect them. The government and society need to work together to ensure the protection of women’s rights and to create a society that is based on equality and justice.

The government of Afghanistan has made some efforts to improve the situation of women, but there is still a long way to go. The government needs to take concrete steps to address the root causes of violence against women, such as poverty, lack of education, and patriarchal attitudes. Women also need to be empowered to stand up for their rights and to demand change.

In conclusion, the situation of women in Afghanistan is a serious issue that needs to be addressed by the government and society. The protection of women’s rights is not only a moral and ethical responsibility, but also a fundamental principle of Islam. The government and society need to work together to create a society that is based on equality and justice, where women can live in peace and security.

India Invites Pakistan and, Afghanistan to Join Front against Polio

India has extended a helping hand to its two key neighbouring countries - Pakistan and Afghanistan - in an attempt to form a unit front to completely eradicate polio.

NEW DELHI - The Indian ministry of external affairs (MEA), along with the health ministry, recently invited teams from the two countries to visit India and adopt its model for eradicating polio, an official said.

According to the official, a delegation from Afghanistan is expected on February 21. However, India is yet to hear from Pakistan on the issue.

Both Pakistan and Afghanistan have high polio burdens and, therefore, India runs a high risk of importing the virus. After an outbreak last year, most countries, including India, introduced extra health checks on prospective visitors from Pakistan, which alone accounts for over 75% of polio cases globally. This is the main reason why the government here has not been able to shed its guard against... [More on PAI-09]
