Taliban Enhances Links to Organized Crime: UN

BLAMARAD – The United Nations Tuesday said the Taliban’s involvement in criminal activity appears to have increased in Afghanistan, warning the trend has consequences for peace and security in the war-torn central Asian nation.

A new study conducted by a U.N. Security Council Committee indicates the scale and depth of this criminal activity is new, and builds on decades of inter-action between the Taliban and others involved in criminal behavior, including narcotics trafficking, illicit mining, collusion with mafia and kidnapping for ransom.

An official statement released from New York, says the UN Committee has identified specific cases of cooperation between organized crime syndicates, notably by groups involved in kidnap-for-ransom, in the production and trade of narcotics, gold in the illegal exploitation of natural resources in Afghanistan.

It says that at times, the Taliban insurgency has attempted to generate revenue directly by acting as a criminal body.

This trend has consequences for peace and security in Afghanistan, it says, as it encourages those with ill-intention in the Taliban movement to have the U.N. (More on P. 20)

The lightness of Afghan narcotic addicts is rapidly increasing in intensity. Afghan men resort to addiction to help themselves to overcome the pressure of life, because of financial pressures, incompetence, frustration and related reasons. Some young people have been ruined by this drudgery. Although, the addicts realize the harmful effects of the consumption of narcotic addicts, they never attempt to kick the habit in the public and recordable smoking. All the narcotic addicts suffer severe illness in one way or another and are unable to take care of them. The consumption in narcotic addicts among Afghan boys is increasing. Their addiction is a sign of apathy and insidiousness to the addiction potent danger are considerable.

Resorting to narcotic addiction to get rid of financial problems or mental stress is not the right approach. Finding a feloading source in drugs, especially in coca, opium and cannabis, is considered harmful. Addicts simply put the drugs in their nose and then inhale them, but this is not enough to kick the habit. For those who want to die, they use the addictive to jump to the abyss. In some cases, the addicts jump off the roofs and commit suicide.

Children fall in the narcotic addicts on the streets, yet sit at the same time and make derogatory remarks about them. Often, they have a reputation for being thieving, thieves, and thieves. The addicts suffer from children’s hunting, being whistled and being insulted with vile words. As a result, no one wants to accept the addict, who intended to go for medical treatment, was complained about the bad results in his neighborhood. For example, “Where is everybody, come you addiction and make fun of me. For sucking you addiction, I am not going to lie anymore, and you have no place to do this.” He was evicted from that condition, saying that he was working well in his father’s land and he had friend helped him to open addiction.

We are working on drug addiction, the men get option, he answered. "I am still working on my father’s land, but I have tried my energy to help him in his Reward, and I thought I might work as a boy, I like to feel some fruit and buy a little amount of water. It is important for your addiction, you need not worry, if you know the lack does not you can not do a word. I asked the man to fight with the drug and the addict was voluntary, so he had to make him to understand the addiction. My white hands and legs, and you must not worry about your addiction.

Narcotic addiction threatens many challenges to our family life. It has to prevent, poverty and crime. Because sometimes a drug addict has to steal and rob and this is a serious problem for the society.

The use of illegal drugs is a social problem that is spreading rapidly in society. The government and its departments are trying to combat this problem by various means. However, these measures are not always effective. Therefore, it is necessary to develop effective strategies to prevent drug addiction.
