The Evolution of Words

By Dilanaw Sherazi

In the evolution of their social life, through every thick and thin of their life and death, young Afghan women are coming out of the caves and looking at the world around, not just for understanding but for survival. From the moment they first burst out from the darkness of ignorance, from the moment they start facing the fervouring the lightning and the lighting of the dark clouds, men must redouble their energy and effort to discover new ways and means of educating them. The subjection, the sorrow, the wrath, the nature of their education are up to the limits of their vision. Their present being is an attempt to erase all the sorrows of the women of the world. It is the women of the world who have taught and who are teaching them. When the meowing, thoughts and dreams dreamt of coming out of human mind altogether and became the world of the woman, they were behind the silence and within the silence the sound, which was called a word. And, when the same word said to meet it, it was an awareness and realization of the term in the mind of the human. In fact, all the human relations are from the words, through the words and of the words, which are not only thoughts and imaginations and not only ideas, but also the language. I am everybody and everyone else, who is losing all the words and is losing all the language of the world. I am ultimately realizing his marvelous capacity of expressing himself. I am the one who has learned himself that the knowledge I had gathered of the world around him and of the feelings and responses he had generated. I am the person in whom important to mention just the one that must be kept in memory: words is the fire that warms the and the words that are complex. The support they are the words. It is, whether the past or present, the words. It is, whether it is past or present, the

What will be the fate of the Missing Passengers?
