Behind the cutouts, there seems to be efforts underway to bro- ke the tension, with the two sides making small steps toward easing the tensions and making sure the issue does not escalate into a major conflict. Taliban's office in Qatar has once again become active and there have been reports of a Taliban delegation's visit to Afghanistan. In addition, the government has been holding meetings with Taliban officials to discuss the possibility of resuming direct talks. The current atmosphere suggests that both sides are trying to work towards a peaceful resolution. However, it is important to note that tensions remain high and there is a need for continued efforts to bring the two sides to the negotiating table.

By Hayyattullah Zia

It is believed that all the pressures young people face, the most prominent is that of fashion. By this, I mean the constant urge to keep up with the trends. This is especially seen on social media platforms. However, there are other factors that contribute to this trend. One major factor is the influence of social media influencers. They are often seen promoting certain trends and products, which can influence young people's decisions. However, it's important to note that these trends can be both positive and negative. Some trends, like those promoting body positivity and self-confidence, can have a positive impact. But, on the other hand, trends that promote unhealthy behaviors or unrealistic body standards can be harmful. Therefore, it's crucial to be aware of these trends and make informed decisions about what to follow and what to ignore.
