Security must be Prioritized

The incident of the last week, which resulted in the death of an Afghan National Army (ANA) soldier was really very tragic. Taliban infiltrators reportedly killed an ANA soldier in Balkh province and abducted 20 of the soldiers before killing 22 others. The incident left the ANA on edge and serious concerns about the possibility of a larger-scale attack, which the demands have arisen that ANA should launch a counter-offensive before the situation gets out of hand. Minister of Interior Abdul Raziq on Friday, April 13, warned that a doom offensive would be initiated in the next few days. He also warned that the security forces were well-equipped in the district to ensure that the situation was decisive and that all Afghan security forces and the Afghan Army would be ready at any moment to launch a counter-offensive in the area.

Unfortunately, Afghanistan's economy is the worst hit by consecutive insecurity and war. The number of displaced people is estimated to be over 7 million. The issue of internal displacement and the security problem is a severe threat to Afghanistan. Therefore, it is important for the government now that it has to prove that it has the capability to control the situation in the province. It has to well-calculated assess the situation in the fractious, and launch a comprehensive military operation in the area. The UN is urging all parties to ensure that the Afghan security forces, including the Taliban, have the opportunity to implement the peace talks.

U.N. Chief Urges Immediate Ceasefire by ‘All Parties’ in Yemen War

NEW YORK - U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Thursday called for an immediate and unconditional ceasefire in Yemen, the first time he has made such a demand since Saudi-led air strikes began a month ago. Ban said the poorest country in the Middle East was already in a critical situation, with tens of thousands of people on the brink of starvation, with lack of food and water, and with no immediate prospect of a solution.

The United Nations' top official in the region said the conflict was a "war of extermination" and called on all parties to "step up their efforts to end this suffering and bring peace to Yemen."

"We must stop the violence and ensure that those who have been forced from their homes are able to return safely," Ban said. "We must also ensure that humanitarian aid reaches those who need it most, particularly children and women."

Ban also called for an immediate end to the conflict and for all parties to the conflict to "lay down their arms and take steps towards a political solution." He said the UN would work with all parties to achieve a "just and lasting peace" in Yemen.

"This is a moment of great urgency and responsibility," Ban said. "We must act now to prevent a further escalation of violence and suffering in Yemen, and to help bring about a peaceful and just resolution to the conflict."

Ban's call for a ceasefire came as tensions between the government and opposition forces in Yemen increased. The government, backed by Saudi Arabia, has been fighting for more than five years to eliminate the Houthi movement, which is supported by Iran.

The Houthis have been fighting a military campaign against the government and have taken control of much of the north of the country. The UN has estimated that over 100,000 people have been displaced by the conflict and that more than 80% of the population is living in poverty.

Ban said the international community must step up its efforts to provide relief to those suffering in Yemen and to help bring about a just and lasting peace. He called on all parties to the conflict to "take concrete steps towards a political solution and to lay down their arms.

"We must work together to help bring about a peaceful and just resolution to the conflict in Yemen," Ban said. "I urge all parties to the conflict to come together and work towards a just and lasting peace."

Sanctions Should Remain on Iran: Netanyahou

JERUSALEM - As the Israeli government renews its efforts to find a nuclear deal with Iran, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu says that sanctions on Iran should be maintained.

Netanyahu, who has made Iran's nuclear program a key issue of his re-election campaign, says that lifting the sanctions would be a "disaster" for Israel.

"Our position is clear," Netanyahu said in a statement. "Lifting sanctions would be a disaster for Israel, for the region, and for the world. We cannot afford to take a risk with Iran's nuclear program.

"The international community has been clear: Iran must not be allowed to obtain nuclear weapons. We must not give up our right to defend ourselves against this threat.

"We are committed to working with our partners to push for a comprehensive solution to the Iranian nuclear program that ensures that Iran does not develop nuclear weapons.

"We will continue to work with our partners to impose strong sanctions on Iran until we are confident that Iran is not pursuing a nuclear weapons program.

"We must not take any risks with the safety of our citizens or the security of our region. We will continue to fight for a world that is free of nuclear weapons.

"I urge all nations to work together to ensure that Iran does not acquire nuclear weapons. We must not give up our right to defend ourselves against this threat."

Kerry Conveys to Sharif US Concern over Lakhi's Release

WASHINGTON - U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry on Thursday conveyed to the Pakistani government in a telephone call that Washington was concerned about the release of leading Taliban figure Mullah Lakhi, a senior al Qaeda lieutenant who has been released from a U.S.-run prison in Afghanistan.

The United States has repeatedly warned that the release of Lakhi could destabilize the situation in Afghanistan, and that it was a "serious mistake." However, Pakistan has insisted that Lakhi was a national hero and that he had been released in exchange for a U.S. soldier who was captured in a previous operation.

"I urge the Pakistani government to reconsider this decision," Kerry said in a statement. "We believe that the release of Lakhi could have serious implications for the stability of Afghanistan and the region.

"The United States has expressed its concern to Pakistan on numerous occasions, and we urge Pakistan to take all necessary steps to ensure that Lakhi does not pose a threat to the region or to the stability of Afghanistan.

"I urge the Pakistanis to think carefully about the implications of this decision, and to take all necessary steps to ensure that Lakhi does not pose a threat to the region or to the stability of Afghanistan."

Tehran, Beijing will Work to Mitigate New Security Ties: Delugan

TEHRAN - Iran's defense minister says the Islamic Republic will work to mitigate "new security ties" between China and Russia.

"Our defense minister has met with his Chinese counterpart and has discussed how to mitigate the new security ties between Russia and China," Fereydoun Salehi, Iran's defense minister, said on Tuesday.

"They are working on a plan to mitigate these new security ties, and we are working with them on this matter," Salehi said.

"Iran will work to mitigate these new security ties with Russia and China in order to maintain its national interests," Salehi said.

China's Foreign Ministry Confirms 'Huge Financing' Plan

BEIJING - China's Ministry of Finance said on Wednesday that it has approved a $20 billion "huge financing" plan for the development of new energy and energy-related projects.

"The plan is a significant step in China's efforts to promote the development of new energy and energy-related projects," the ministry said in a statement.

"It will help to accelerate the development of new energy and energy-related projects in China and to promote the country's economic development and social progress."

"We are committed to promoting the development of new energy and energy-related projects in China and to promoting the country's economic development and social progress," the ministry said.

China has been ramping up its efforts to develop new energy and energy-related projects in recent years, as part of its efforts to reduce its carbon emissions and to promote the development of the country's energy sector.

The Chinese government has set a target of achieving 20% of its total energy consumption from new energy sources by 2030, and has been working to promote the development of new energy technologies and to promote the use of renewable energy sources.

Kazakhstan's Massive Oil Field Is Finally Getting Repaired

KUWAIT - Kazakhstan's massive Tengiz oil field, which was closed down last year due to a series of technical problems, is now being repaired.

The Tengiz field, located in the Caspian Sea, produces around 800,000 barrels per day and is one of the world's largest oil fields.

"The Tengiz field has been closed down due to technical problems," a Tengiz field official said.

"We are working to repair the problems and bring the field back online as soon as possible."

"We are committed to making sure that the Tengiz field is back online as soon as possible," the official said.

The Tengiz field is one of the leading oil fields in the world, and its closure has been a major blow to Kazakhstan's oil industry and to the country's economy.

The Tengiz field is owned by a consortium of companies including ExxonMobil, KazMunaiGaz, and Kuwait Oil Company.
