10) Civilian populated areas

In the face of severe conflict, the majority of the population remains under threat. Many areas are completely isolated from the outside world, and the situation for civilians continues to deteriorate. In such areas, civilians are often caught in the crossfire, and humanitarian assistance is urgently needed to reach them.

8) Census

The current conflict has led to a significant decrease in the population of many regions. The preliminary estimates indicate a decrease of approximately 25% in the census population. The situation continues to deteriorate, and the need for demographic data is more critical than ever.

6) Military, political, and diplomatic relations

The military balance of power in the region continues to evolve. The political and diplomatic efforts remain crucial for resolving the conflict and promoting stability. Diplomatic initiatives are needed to facilitate dialogue and find a peaceful solution.

4) Infrastructure

The infrastructure in the area is severely damaged, with many roads and bridges destroyed. This has severely impacted the delivery of aid and the movement of people.

2) Oil

The oil industry is crucial for funding the conflict. The international community must address the humanitarian consequences of the continued oil embargo.

1) Peace process

A comprehensive peace process is needed to address the roots of the conflict and create a lasting solution. The international community must work together to facilitate negotiations and support the peace process.
