Mineral Resources: A Big Hope for Afghanistan

Agriculture is a sector in which Afghanistan has gained considerable importance. The country's agriculture sector offers significant potential, as evidenced by recent years' increased agricultural production and exports. However, challenges remain, including limited infrastructure, access to capital, and market access. Despite these challenges, the Afghan government has been working to improve the sector, with plans to increase food security and reduce poverty through agricultural development. The country's diverse geography and climate offer a range of opportunities for various crops and livestock. Agriculture is expected to play a crucial role in the country's economic recovery and development. However, there are also concerns about environmental impacts and the sustainability of agricultural practices. The Afghan government, with support from international partners, is implementing programs to address these challenges, including improvements in irrigation systems, crop diversification, and the promotion of sustainable farming practices. These efforts are essential for ensuring food security, reducing poverty, and contributing to the country's overall development. By Muhammad Nazir Safi

Realizing True Value of Mujahidin!

Realizing true value of mujahidin is an important issue that has been raised in recent years. The Mujahidin played a crucial role in the struggle against Soviet occupation and in the subsequent fight for Afghanistan's independence. Large Amounts of Taxpayer Dollars Lost to Waste, Fraud

WASHINGTON - With more than $10 billion already being appropriated for reconstructing Afghanistan, Special Inspector General for Afghanistan Reconstruction (SIGAR) John F. Sopko on Tuesday raised that from the outset to this very day, large amounts of taxpayer dollars have been lost to waste, fraud, and abuse.

To put things into some perspective, the $10 billion already appropriated for reconstructing Afghanistan, after adjusting for inflation, equals the value of the entire Marshall Plan effort to rebuild Western Europe after World War II, Sopko said on a special appearance on the World News Medical College in New York City.

"Unfortunately, from the outset to this very day, large amounts of taxpayer dollars have been lost to waste, fraud, and abuse," he said.

CPG Underlines Steps to Reduce Civilian Casualties

KABUL - Civilian Protection Group (CPG) on Wednesday expressed concerns over the rising civilian casualties in the ongoing conflict, saying the warning factors should develop rules of engagement to protect civil-

The group said that the first quarter of 2015 witnessed 32 per cent rise in civilian casualties as compared to the first quarter of last year.

The rise according to CPG, directly needs a change in terms of civil protection and the way the affected were being compensated.

Murtuza Kargar, CPG member, told journalists in order to reduce civilian casualties the peace process should go about rigorously and the warring factions should be made bound to protect civilians.

"If the government takes more to bring peace and make the peace process a success, violence will come down and naturally civilian casualties will decrease as well," he added.

The UN Assistance Mission to Afghani-
