Mohaqiq Voices Doubts after Meeting Taliban

"There were five individuals from the Taliban, and there was no discussion or exchange of words," Mohaqiq said. "In this conference, only voices were presented, there wasn’t a major difference since the past, and I didn’t feel a good development in the peace process." Nevertheless, it appears the Afghan government is willing to take the first good step toward real peace talks. According to the source, the officials have indicated in talks in Kabul that the Taliban has opened an official office in Qatar. Taliban leaders have said that they will seek to improve relations with the government. (More on Pajhwok)

Govt. has no strategy to fight Daesh: MPs

KARUL - Some Wolesi Jirga members on Monday said the government lacked a strategy to deal with threats posed by the isolated Basar State or Daesh group.

Speaking at the general meeting, the lawmakers warned that security situation would further deteriorate if the government did not pay heed to the prevailing situations.

The senior Islamic State group is comprised of Chechens, Turks, Tajiks and Arab fighters.

The group emerged last year in Helmand, Farah, Khoran and Logar provinces and is said to be active in Balochistan, Kandahar and Nangarhar.

Rahim Majroh, a lawmaker from Herat province, said: “Daesh presence expands daily. If their recruitment continues, they would start attacking our own police and security forces.” He accused government officials of negligence saying currently only the Taliban fought against the... (More on Pajhwok)

Ramadan Month of Peace and Compassion

U nlike Barack Obama and other American leaders who have visited Pakistan in the past, President Obama has not spoken about the need for political concessions or the need for Pakistan to work towards a solution to the situation in Afghanistan.

President Obama's visit has been seen as a significant step towards improving the relationship between the two countries, as it has helped to build confidence and trust between the two leaders.

Meanwhile, the tension in the region continues, with tensions rising over the issue of the construction of a US military base in the area. The government of Pakistan has expressed concern over the construction of the base, and has called for negotiations to be held to resolve the issue.

Meanwhile, the situation in Afghanistan remains tense, with reports of renewed fighting, violence, and insecurity.

Afghans are highly exhausted from this endless insurgency and the mission to bring peace and order to their country.

They pray for peace and wish to breathe safely in a secure atmosphere.

The members of the Afghan Civilian Forum call for an immediate halt to the fighting and a diplomatic solution to the crisis in Afghanistan.

The Afghan people are deeply suffering and tired of the constant violence and bloodshed. They want a peaceful and stable future for their country.

The Afghan government and the international community, including the United Nations and the United States, have a responsibility to work towards a lasting peace in Afghanistan.

The Afghan government must take concrete steps to address the root causes of the conflict and to build a lasting peace that is sustainable and inclusive.

The international community must continue to support the Afghan government and its efforts towards a peaceful and prosperous future for Afghanistan.

President Obama's visit has been a positive step towards improving the relationship between the two countries, and it is hoped that this will lead to a more peaceful and stable future for Afghanistan.

Putin to Hollande, Merkel: Ukrainian Forces Must Stop Shelling

BRUSSELS — The European Union (EU) announced Monday that it has decided to extend economic sanctions against Russia until 31 January 2016 to pressure Moscow to implement the Minsk agreements reached on 12 February. The European Commission, in its weekly report on aid, noted that the EU had agreed to extend sanctions until 31 January 2016, following the announcement of Russian military activity in eastern Ukraine. The sanctions are likely to remain in place until Russia returns to the terms of the Minsk agreements and the domestic situation in the region improves. The sanctions include a ban on exports of oil and gas to the EU, restrictions on access to capital markets, and a ban on trade in arms and dual-use goods. The sanctions are expected to remain in place until Russia returns to the terms of the Minsk agreements and the domestic situation in the region improves.
