Next Four Months are Fate-Deciding: President

KARUL - President Ashraf Ghani has said the next four months will be "fate-deciding" for Afghanistan and the only way to build sustainable and durable security is to defuse the Afghan force. Talking to lawmakers from southern Ghur province at his office last night, the president asked the public representatives to come together and pursue the government in implementing the reform programme. A statement from the Presidential Palace said lawmakers Dr Abdul Qader Qadri spoke on behalf of others about security-related issues in Ghur province, including targeted killings, hostage-taking of the passengers, abduction in police stations in districts and a weak government support for. "Let's Develop our Lives without Drugs"

Asmatyari

Contrary to popular good—occasionally the role of self-sufficiency in securing the shared interest of human community. This can be illustrated by the following example: Most people believe the act of”, and is known as a zero-sum game, which implies a situation where if one person benefits, another person must lose. This leads to a situation of perpetual conflict and a win-lose scenario.

We are living in a world where the concept of development is often misunderstood. Development is not just about economic growth; it is about creating opportunities for all, ensuring access to basic needs, and promoting sustainable practices. The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) set by the United Nations outline a pathway for a better future for all.

In closing, it is important to remember that the journey towards development is not easy, but it is achievable with continued effort and commitment. Let us work together to ensure a sustainable future for everyone.

Peace Negotiation - A Futile Attempt

By Hujjatullah Zia

Pakistan would push a construction role in promoting peace and security in Afghanistan that could best be achieved through promoting tangible reconstruction undertaken and led by Afghans themselves – said Malala Lodhi’s Pakistan’s ambassador to Afghanistan.

Peace talks are the only solution for bringing an end to the current conflict in Afghanistan, which has been going on for over 40 years. The war has resulted in the loss of millions of lives and has caused immense suffering to the people of Afghanistan.

Pakistan has been a significant player in promoting peace talks in Afghanistan. It has been actively involved in facilitating negotiations between the government of Afghanistan and the Taliban. Pakistan has been instrumental in bringing the two sides to the negotiating table multiple times.

Pakistan has a long history of involvement in Afghanistan. It has supported the Afghan resistance during the Soviet occupation and has been a strong advocate for Afghan peace and stability.

Pakistan’s ambassador to Afghanistan, Malala Lodhi, has emphasized the need for Afghans to take the lead in the peace process. She has stated that Pakistan will continue to support the Afghan government and the Afghan people in their efforts to achieve peace.

Malala Lodhi has said that Pakistan will not accept any compromise on the core issue of the Taliban’s political participation. She has also emphasized the importance of including all stakeholders in the peace process.

Pakistan has been instrumental in bringing the Taliban to the negotiating table multiple times. However, the peace process has faced several challenges, including the Taliban’s demands for a permanent seat in the Afghan government, which Pakistan has rejected.

Pakistan has also been criticized for its support of the past regime of the Taliban. However, Pakistan’s ambassador to Afghanistan, Malala Lodhi, has stated that Pakistan will not accept any compromise on the core issue of the Taliban’s political participation.

Pakistan’s efforts to promote peace in Afghanistan have been recognized by the international community. The United Nations has praised Pakistan’s role in promoting peace talks in Afghanistan.

The source said that the talks are expected to conclude in the coming weeks.
Afghanistan to Export Copper, Iron in Next Ten Years: Ghani

KABUL - President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani told his country’s foreign investors yesterday that Afghanistan could be the world’s largest copper and iron exporter by 2023, with production reaching 100 million tons annually.

"Afghanistan is geographically located in a region which connects the Middle East, Central Asia and eastern Asian states but it is not yet a major single-region structure development," he said.

Ghani said his government has focused on reforming the mining sector, including construction of roads, development of public and private irrigation systems and creating job opportunities for young people.

Ghani also called on the Taliban to end years of conflict and reduce tension so that Afghanistan has vast potential for trade and investment.

The country’s copper reserves are estimated at 237 million tons, and iron ore reserves at 170 million tons. The government estimates that copper exports could reach $1 billion within five years, and iron ore exports $700 million.

US to Decide on Troops Level in Afghanistan after the War

KABUL - The United States will decide regarding the number of troops coming from Afghanistan after the fighting season, the US ambassador to Kabul, Richard Holbrooke, told local media.

In response to a question regarding the deterrence activities of Afghan security forces, Holbrooke said the country has vast potential for trade and investment.

The country’s copper reserves are estimated at 237 million tons, and iron ore reserves at 170 million tons. The government estimates that copper exports could reach $1 billion within five years, and iron ore exports $700 million.
