Record Afghan Opium Output Prompts Cheaper US Heroin Supply

KARUL - Afghan poppy fields covered some 210,000 hectares last year, according to the UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC). At the world's largest opium producer, Afghanistan's opium output has been a direct impact on global opium cultivation, which has seen a steady increase since the late 1990s. The increase in opium production has led to a decrease in the price of heroin in the US, allowing for a cheaper heroin supply.

Increasing IS, Taliban Influence Concerns Putin

KARUL - Russia is reportedly worried about increasing influence of Islamic State and Taliban in Afghanistan. Putin has spoken with President Karzai to discuss ways to reduce the influence of IS and the Taliban in the country.

Democratization Leads to Prosperity

D emocracy, in the modern world of ours, is considered as the most promising form of government. It is the most progressive form of government that can be pursued in the same system. However, there are some of the advocates of democracy who have foreseen the positive way and seven people in the best way. Nevertheless, it is important to understand that there are certain conditions which are absolutely necessary for the successful functioning of a democratic government.

One of the most important essentials is a constitution. Constitution implication rule of law rather than any rule of men. Every citizen is granted equal right to pursue happiness, liberty and individually, protected by the constitution, must be applied with letter and spirit, seeing as it is the fundamental principles of the rule of the people. It guarantees that there is no absolute authority in governing people and of course, yielding to different groups are given equal political rights. Nothing is more equal than freedom, as each person should have a say and non-uniform opinion of every opinion in every field. True democratic society is one in which everyone has equal voting rights. Freedom of speech and the press are also important in a democracy. Democracy requires not merely an absence of ignorance but also that the citizens are well-informed. People being well-educated, education produces a well-educated and a vigilant public.

If knowledge remains scanty, scarcity and constrained to certain circles and the risks of being unrepresented steeped in ignorance and error, there can be no prospect of the success of democracy. Education makes citizens vigilant and also gives them the means to criticize government men-which are all either corrupted or harmful. In fact, education produces wise and thinking and an enlightened and alert people. A free and fair press is another vital necessity for democracy to flourish. It stimulates public opinion and empowers the government to enforce policies in the interests of the masses.

The newspaper acts as a bridge between the government and the people. It acquaints the people with the policy and principles of the government. At the same time, it educates the public to this policy and thus enables the government to eradicate. If such an education is not carried out, the government can do no better than waste its time on campaigns that are poorly organized. Therefore, with the help of education, the government can create awareness in the masses.

A zeal of democracy is nothing but a zeal for and against democracy. If the people in power possess public opinion, the public can be powerful.

A conflict of ideas is any time better than a conflict of arms. Without an opposition, democracy falls. The public opinion proves that the activities of the government by the opposition keeps the government vigilant and prevents it from being arbitrary. Legislature does not always happen in a good atmosphere. Legislation is impossible only when the law is discussed therein. If the law is not discussed therein, the law is expected to be a law. In this regard, the public opinion is of great importance. The public opinion can avoid any serious mistakes in the government, the policies its makes and the actions that it takes.

For the health and efficiency of the government, an efficient, vigilant and working opposition is indispensable. Strong opposition exercises a healthy check on the government of the day. It is then that the public opinion is effective in the absence of strong political parties. Education is the, therefore, an essential part of democratic education. A leader of such learning and understandable, people belonging to various religious faiths live in harmony and peace. There has been a development in the values and traditions in our culture that promote interra-

T is a wonderful saying, we inhabit a universe that is characterized by diversity. Behold a beautiful garden full of flow- ers, a beautiful garden is a place where all things are different, colors, water, flowers, and even animals; it is a place where all the flowers in the garden are different in color and what different fruits they bear! Yet all these flowers, shrubs and trees coming from the same earth, the same sun shines upon them and the same clouds give them rain...

So is it with humanity, it is made up of different races, different colors, and its people are of different color, white, black, yellow, brown and red— but all come from the same father, the same mother. The children of man are not born with any sort of the thing as it has been endowed to them by the Father of all mankind. All the races are equal in the sight of humanity, all are equal in the sight of God. Among men exists the diversity of mankind but such differences exist can be made or can be made to exist. That is the cause of war and hatred among the different nations of the world.

Differences - which are only those of blood also cause them to destroy and kill one another. Let us look rather at the beauty in diversity, the beauty in the variety of man. Look at the variety of man, the vegetable creation. If you beheld a garden in which all the plants were the same as in color, form and flavor, it would not seem beautiful to you at all, but, rather, monotonous and dull. The garden which is pleasing to the eye and which makes the heart glad is the garden in which are growing side by side flowers of different colors, tastes, and scents the whole thing what makes for charm and beauty.

This is true, the current state of truth a designer in a plantation planted with many species of shrubs. It is just the diversity and variety that make the garden so beautiful, the shrubs and flowers and trees. Everyone has his favorite tree, each fruit, besides being beautiful in itself, brings, if one by contrast the qualities of the others, and shows advantages the superiority of the one another.

So should it be with human beings? The diversity of humanity is a blessing, not a curse. It is a strength, not a weakness. It is a richness in music where many different notes blend together in the music. There is no one note, there is no one color, there is no one form of color or you don't know find together of the one note. In the same way the diversity of humanity allows one to find together of the qualities.

Differences are what make us strong human beings? The diversity is the beauty in diversity, the beauty in the variety of man. Look at the variety of man, the vegetable creation.

For instance, let us say that we are trying to create a garden in which the flowers are all the same color, all the same form, all the same scent. What would be the result? A garden that is not very attractive, that is not very interesting, that is not very pleasant to look at. A garden that is not very pleasant to look at because there is no variety.

This is what the world is like. It is not very pleasant to look at because there is no variety. A world that is not very pleasant to look at because there is no variety. A world that is not very pleasant to look at because there is no variety.

What will be the world like? What will be the world like? What will be the world like? What will be the world like? What will be the world like? What will be the world like?

US Expresses Concern over Insurgents’ Attacks on Civilians

WASHINGTON - Noting that escalating violence, notably indiscrimiinate attacks, on civilians were the most significant human rights abuses in Algeria in the year 2014, the State Department on Thursday expressed concern over continued attacks on civilian targets by armed separatist groups.

While we recognize the significant human rights abuses that continue to be committed on a daily basis, we are deeply concerned about the continuing lack of progress in implementing the agreements reached in the past year to end the conflict and bring about peace and stability to the region.

The most significant problem was continued attacks on civilians by the various armed separatist groups, who often target civilians with little or no warning.

The international community continues to urge all parties to the conflict to respect international humanitarian law and to ensure that civilians are protected from violence.
