Jalriz Incident: Failures, Ambiguities and Distrusts

By Abdul Ahab Bahrami

The wake of the deadly Talibain battle between Taliban fighters and Afghan security forces in Jalriz district of Maidan Wardak province has further complicated the situation on the ground and the security agencies to appropriately respond to the apparent negligence over the issue. Many high-level government officials and MPs have raised questions whether there have been some sort of conspiracy behind the incident and collisions with the Taliban that led to the carnage which left around 27 local police forces killed. The lack of action from the Afghan security forces and the Taliban has been significantly criticized by the public, the media, and top political figures, some even implying possible involvement from both sides in the incidents serving in the district and the Afghan security agencies.

A number of incidents which have been reported by the National Security Council, including Had Mohammad Mohaqiq, the Second Deputy of the Chief Executive Officer and Senator (SCO) and the Second Vice President, have severely criticized Afghan security agencies and top security officials for negligence and apparent lack of action to help the embattled security forces trying to repel the Taliban attack.

The security situation in the province has been deteriorating since the Afghan elections, with the death toll in the province of the Taliban and local security forces reaching the double figures. The apparent lack of action and preventable betrayal from local and national officials has been an additional blow to the Afghan security forces. It is widely believed that a range of individuals and agencies, including local officials and security forces, have been involved in the attacks on several occasions. This belief is not only fueled by the absence of effective response from the Afghan security forces but also by the failure to take immediate action when needed.

The lack of coordination and cooperation among different security agencies is another major issue that has hampered efforts to address the crisis. The situation has further worsened with the recent elections, as candidates and their supporters have been targeted by the Taliban and other armed groups. The lack of effective response has led to a sense of frustration and a feeling of abandonment among the citizenry.

The incident in Jalriz also casts doubt on the ability of the Afghan security agencies to provide support for the embattled soldiers. It reinforces the belief that the Taliban and other armed groups have a significant advantage in terms of resources and capabilities. The lack of effective response from the Afghan security forces also raises questions about their preparedness and ability to respond to such incidents.

The incident in Jalriz is a stark reminder of the challenges facing the Afghan security forces in their efforts to maintain stability and security in the country. The lack of coordination and cooperation among different security agencies, the lack of effective response from the Afghan security forces, and the lack of resources and capabilities of the Taliban and other armed groups all contribute to the current situation.

The Afghan government and its allies must address these issues and work together to improve the security situation in the country. The Afghan security forces need to receive the necessary support and resources to effectively respond to such incidents, and the government must take the necessary steps to ensure the safety and security of the Afghan people.

Pakistan Meets IMF Condition of $7.3bn NRI Target

BURLINGTON - Burundi on Saturday rejected a scathing report by a U.N. mediator named to help resolve the country's political crisis, saying criticism of recent opposition attacks was unfair.

The report said Burundi's ruling coalition had failed to give the opposition the opportunity to participate in the political process.

The opposition bodies, led by the National Unity Platform, said the decision of the U.N. Secretary-General to name a mediator had been taken to make the situation transparent.

The mediator, proprio of a ministry that was established in the past by the government, said he was preparing to submit his report to the Secretary-General.

The report also said the government had not cooperated with the mediator.
