No Setup in Violence Even after Pakistan-Backed Talks: Faisal

KARABIL—Javed Faisal, spokesman for the Taliban’s political office, said on Thursday that first round of talks with Taliban had “positively continued” but had not brought the nation “any closer to a comprehensive solution.”

Faisal said the government of Afghanistan had not been active in negotiations with the Taliban. “We are not interested in starting negotiations with the Taliban,” he said, warning that Pakistan had not stopped supporting insurgents in Afghanistan.

Faisal said the government had been “directly” and “indirectly” supporting the Taliban through its proxies and Pakistani officials had been present in the negotiations.

Faisal said the government did not support the insurgents in Afghanistan. “We are not interested in stopping the electrons from coming to our country. We are interested in passing the electrons to Pakistan,” he said.

KARABIL—Pakistan has no plan to send troops to Afghanistan, Faisal said on Thursday. Faisal said that Pakistan has not stopped supporting insurgents in Afghanistan, but the government of Pakistan had not stopped supporting the Taliban.

Faisal said that Pakistan’s army had not stopped supporting the Taliban in Afghanistan.

Ex-Balkh PC Members Held for Aiding Suicide Bombers

Mazar-I-Sharif: A Taliban plan to carry out suicide attacks in northern Afghan province with alleged support from former Provincial Council of Balkh members has been failed, an official provincial council source said on Tuesday.

Mohammad Amid Dana, head of provincial council, told Pajhwok Afghan News former public representatives who could not get last year's election had planned a suicide attack, an official provincial council source said.

The alleged former PC member Abul Basat Bashari had planned the suicide attack with the support of at least two Taliban militants, the provincial council source added.

The information collected from several sources showed that former PC members had mobilized in secret to attack on the building but his careful planning was neutralized.

Taliban had around a number of suicide bombers to carry out terrorist attack on the building, the source added.

The Shadow of Taliban Leader on Peace Process

By Abdul Ahad Bakhrit

Taliban

The role of the Afghan Taliban leader Mullah Mohammad Omar in Taliban leadership and the ongoing peace process appears to be critical. Mullah Omar's absence from public view has led to a situation where his leadership is in question. It has led to questions about the government's policies and the Taliban's intentions, raising concerns about the future of the peace process.

Mullah Omar has been the one preventing Taliban and commanders to negotiate with the government. This has increased the concerns about the peace process. His absence also raises questions about the government's policies and the Taliban's intentions. It has led to a situation where the peace process is in question.

The Taliban leadership, the government, and the international community are all trying to find a resolution to the situation. The role of Mullah Omar in the peace process is uncertain. I. Pakistan's economy

Pakistan's economy faces several challenges, including high inflation, currency depreciation, and a growing debt burden. The government has implemented various measures to stabilize the economy, including austerity measures and structural reforms. However, the economy remains vulnerable to external shocks and requires continued vigilance.

II. Political developments

Pakistan's political landscape is complex, with multiple political parties and alliances. Recent political developments include the fall of the previous government and the formation of a new government. The new government faces the challenge of addressing structural economic issues and improving governance.

III. Social and cultural issues

Pakistan has diverse cultural and religious practices. The government has implemented policies to address issues such as gender equality and provide access to education and healthcare. However, there are challenges in implementing these policies due to socio-cultural factors.

IV. Security issues

Pakistan faces security challenges, including terrorism and insurgency. The government has implemented various measures to address these issues, including military operations and peace talks. However, these challenges require continued attention and resources.

V. International relations

Pakistan's international relations are complex, with ties to both the United States and China. The government faces challenges in balancing its foreign policy to ensure national security and economic growth.

VI. Conclusion

Pakistan's economy, politics, society, and security issues require continued attention and resources. The government needs to address these challenges to ensure stable economic growth, good governance, and national security.
Peace Process with Kurdish Militants Impossible: Ergun

ANKARA - Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said on Tuesday that inputs from his party's main coalition partner, the Peoples' Democratic Party (HDP), were included in the Mediterranean Commission, which is tasked with drafting a new constitution for the country.

Erdogan said the commission will be chaired by a new chairperson, Murat Ceylan, who previously served as the Turkish ambassador to the United Kingdom.

The HDP, which is led by Selahattin Demirtas, has been a key player in Turkish politics since the 1990s and has been involved in several high-profile cases, including the 1999 and 2002 elections.

Erdogan also stated that the commission will work closely with the government, including by providing input on the draft constitution.

He added that the commission will hold meetings with various stakeholders, including representatives from the government, opposition parties, and civil society organizations.

Erdogan stressed that the commission will work towards a constitution that reflects the interests and aspirations of all Turkish citizens.

In response, the HDP's leader, Demirtas, said that the commission's work is an important step towards building a stronger, more democratic Turkey.

He noted that the HDP has been advocating for constitutional reform for several years, and that the commission's work is a welcome development.

Demirtas added that the HDP will work closely with the commission to ensure that the final constitution reflects the views of all Turkish citizens.
