AISA Chides Govt. for Poor Economic Development Strategy

KABUL - The Afghan Investment and Export Promotion Agency (AISA) on Wednesday protested foreign investment declined by 30 percent and accused government for having no proper strategy for economic development.

During a joint meeting of officials from the AISA and the Federation of Afghan Craftsmen and Traders (FACT), it was decided that steps should be taken to facilitate businessmen and resolve their problems.

Abdul Jabbar Saleh, deputy director of the FACT, said sales had frequently presented their demands and suggestions to the government in the past 14 years but no step could be taken to eliminate the situation.

Mohammed Qurban Haji, director of the AISA, expressed his concern over the current economic situation of the country and said that government had paid no attention to developing the industrial sector in the past decade.

He said statistics showed that foreign investment had declined by 30 percent in the first six months of the ongoing year, compared with the corresponding period of last year.

In addition, he said 70 percent of registered factories had stopped working, while 30 percent were active. The officials alleged the former administration issued licenses to factories without proper planning.

Haji noted that most of youth were looking for job opportunities. Despite existing economic challenges, the government will not have a proper strategy for strengthening the economy, he said (Pajhwok)

Curse in Disguise of Blessing

The current diminish of Afghanistan proves to be a curse in disguise of blessing. It is believed that the countries and the people with limited resources and uninformedness seem to suffer more than when they face any disaster. Same as in the case with Afghanistan, floods resulting from heavy rainfall in various parts of the country, are taking valuable lives that could be saved. As, there is no effective mechanism to respond to the situations, the thousands of disasters have proven to be gigantic and the poor people have suffered more.

According to Afghan National Disaster Management Authority (ANDMA) over the past three days, 22 provinces suffered heavy flooding, leaving in wake a number of villages facing destruction. The death toll from the floods, landslides, and flash floods has reached four. While 29,362 families suffered major property damage and loss. “Many families have suffered losses in the floods and the flood had destroyed our properties, we went to the affected families,” said the ANDMA head Amjad Sharifi.

Natural disasters are really accidental and it is not in the control of the authorities to stop them. According to the latest report, more than 25,000 families have been affected by the flooding. Many families suffered significant property damage. Help is needed to help those in need. As the flood water recedes, experts have started to visit affected areas to help people in the flood-stricken areas.

The government really needs help for such situations and seeks assistance when the winter comes. Reforms in the area of education will make it possible to change lives. The government needs to act on its promise of providing education to all children.

Afghanistan has been a battle ground for over a century, been region and international power players, exercising their power over the land, people, and resources. The struggle has continued. The 1979 and the collapse of the Afghan communist regime in 1992 among other issues. The current situation is a result of the conflict that has been established in the region based on massive human rights violation. This struggle is being continued by the Mujahideen. The world’s countries, and the United States and the Taliban, the oppression of women, suppression of fundamental human rights, and alienation of right to freedom of thought, belief, freedom of religion, and ethnic minorities, the fetus is considered. The people of Afghanistan could hardly admit their human existence.

The condemnable incidence of September 11 turned a blessing in disguise, the presence of Al-Qaeda’s one number leader Osama Bin Laden in Afghanistan turned a blessing to disguise for Afghan. The sitting government, the choir, is now-itself, now, ourselves, after a tough time to Afghan and-US.

The Taliban has been fighting an insurgency against the Western-backed government in Kabul since its outset, killing thousands of civilians and security personnel and making significant territorial gains in the past months. It is witnessed the onset of peace talks is accordingly followed by convening the Afghan government in Washington. Afghanistan, United States, and the Taliban are well aware of the significant role played by security officials and ordinary civilians. The push for peace talks, although often ultimately elusive, is not an achievable course but it must be tried in good faith.

The current situation in Afghanistan is a matter of grave concern. It has always been an ever-present source of concern for the people of the world. If there is a peace deal for Afghanistan, a space for Talibans is still left. The United States is USD to stop ongoing violence in the country. If the peace deal is reached, the Taliban will get added by the negotiation. The peace deal will be a sign of most likely the end of the war and it has to exercise prudence.
