New Kabul Bank Auctioned Again for Sale

KARSH - Finance Minister said that according to the decision of the IBI court, the New Kabul Bank should be sold. The original Kabul Bank, used to pay government salaries, collapsed in 2020 with debts of almost $1 billion, triggering a financial crisis. The banking sector has yet to recover from the shock and the government has struggled to find a buyer for the new institution. However, deputy of Afghanistan Central Bank says that this time all conditions will be considered to identify the buyer.
Treasury chief of the finance ministry, Mu-
hammed Asif Kandere
noted that the New Kabul
Bank is now in a crisis.

Afghan Education Sector Left to Mercy of Insurgents!

Afghanistan's education sector has been left to the mercy of insurgents in the country's war-ravaged landscape. The sector faces numerous challenges, including limited access to education, especially in rural areas, where insurgent activities are prevalent. Insurgents often target schools and educational institutions, causing widespread closures and disrupting the education of thousands of children.

The Taliban, in particular, have been accused of targeting education in their bid to assert control. Insurgents have destroyed schools, kidnapped teachers, and killed or injured students. The situation is dire, and the Afghan government and international partners are struggling to provide a conducive learning environment.

The International Community and the Afghan government must work together to support education initiatives. This includes providing security, resources, and training to educators. The international community should also ensure that aid funds are used effectively and transparently to support education programs.

The situation is critical, and urgent action is needed to protect education in Afghanistan. The Afghan government and international partners must prioritize the safety of schools and educators to ensure a brighter future for the country's children.
