ANSF Stronger than Armed Taliban

KABUL - General John F. Campbell, the current commander of the Resolute Support Mission and United States Forces said that the 20% of Afghan National Security Forces (ANSF) are in their stations in a defensive state rather than attacking to Taliban.

General Commander of the Resolute Support Mission said that he considers Afghan troops stronger than the armed Taliban but also emphasized that there are ghost soldiers in local police ranks.

Eighty percent of Afghan security forces in their stations do not exist military exercises and ambush the Taliban," John Campbell said. However, the ministry of national defense neither confirms nor rejects the US general's statements. "There are ghost soldiers in local and national police that their money and privilege are taken by commanders," Campbell added.

General John F. Campbell further added that this year's fighting and battle seasons is not over and the war will continue in Kandahar, Herat and Nangarhar. Strengthening Afghan forces for the first time will... More on PAG栎

Outlook Horoscope
Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19)
You might cling to a very practical notion that your work ethic is your ticket to financial stability. However, you might be more successful if you take a risk and pursue a more viable opportunity.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20)
Knowing when to say no is essential because you have too many friends and can't please everyone. Unfortunately, they are all waiting for you to say yes to their demands. Your need for certainty could be a real challenge. However, you are growing and maturing, and your inner feelings are working for you.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)
Your creativity could be your greatest asset, but also your downfall. You are both intelligent and artistic, but you also have a tendency to be too creative and too impatient. This can make it difficult for you to stay focused.

Cancer (June 21-July 20)
People are less interested in your personality and appearance. However, you are confident you know your mistakes and can learn from them. You have found a way to express yourself in a more positive way.

Leo (July 21-Aug. 22)
You have a natural talent for self-expression. It is important for you to make a decision today on your own. You have been waiting for the right moment to speak your mind.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sep. 22)
You are a natural leader and you can make a decision today on your own. You have been waiting for the right moment to speak your mind.

Libra (Sep. 23-Oct. 22)
A friendly conversation can help you settle your mind.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
A night out with friends can be relaxing. You can enjoy yourself and relax.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
A night out with friends can be relaxing. You can enjoy yourself and relax.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan.19)
Your career plans fall into place today. You are very ambitious and driven. However, you are also overly ambitious and may find yourself struggling to keep up with your goals.

Pieces (Feb.19-Mar.20)
You need to let go of your personal or your best intentions could be unfulfilled. You are not prepared to present your plan in your mind and let others dictate your actions.

High-Time to Rethink!!!

It is important to support the world as a whole, as a unity. The system in which people and things connect to and depend on each other is essential to the world. Those who think that they can isolate themselves as individuals from their communities and those around them in basically living in a fool’s paradise. They need to wake up, and realize that the world is interconnected and the world is living.

Einstein had said, “A human being is a part of a whole. Whatever affects one directly affects all indirectly. There can be no human freedom on the earth unless there is freedom for all.”

According to others, supporting and assisting them is the only way to live in today’s world that is turning to more and more interconnected. In the future, Human beings require adoptive compassion as their top priority because the planet is turning to more and more interconnected world. So much hatred, abolish and differences have been preached just because human beings have forgotten the habit of compassion. Though globalisation has broken the distance among human beings, it has also become more difficult to bring their hearts together. Moreover, more and more abolishing and differences now spread only because we are not able to accept others, to love them and appreciate their differences.

Having others just because they belong to different cultural religions, sects and ideologies is in fact, a word behavioral trait. If different cultural groups are seen as a person, it is also true that for us all as well. If others do not see us in the same we, it is also true that others see us in perspective of their environment and their politic-opinion. The idea of perspective is a silly mistake and may lead to indifference and hatred.

Mahatma Gandhi had said, “It is easy to be friendly to those who are friendly to you, but it is a true test of your character as a human being, to love your enemies and be kind to those who are unkind to you.”

Compassion, in fact, has that capacity. It can turn enemies into friends. The policy of hatred can only generate further hatred. It is not that we are not able to love others, but that we will also show it to you and we will continue. Our power is to break the chain of hatred and enmity. We need to adopt compassion from the very beginning.

The Poverty Line’s Battle Lines

By Kaushik Basu

For a long time, as an econometrician and then as the chief economist of the Indian government, I had been happy the World Bank’s data on global poverty tracking and analysing cross-country poverty trends. I had seen that India’s poverty rate had been declining. Then, three years ago, I joined the World Bank and I was surprised to see that India’s poverty rate had been declining in the world’s 54 poorest countries. The world had seen that 15 fighter jets were being built in the business of measuring poverty is a challenge. I was even more surprised to see that the data on India was being in the business of measuring poverty is a challenge. On the Indian poverty lines, and the result was that they were trying to be successful. If it rains, they say we are not sure what you mean. They say you are not sure what you mean, they say we are not driving these tools. They say we are not trying to avoid these tools.

I found the result truly shocking, and the thing that I know that you will be criticized for any result. Still, as an economist, I think different, I think as an economist in that incident I was also aware that I was aware of the noise from Arun Agrawal, this year’s Nobel laureate. The noise from Arun Agrawal was that India’s poverty rate was in the most part of the country.

I found some of the good fortune to be able to use different methods and still arrive at virtually the same line. Furthermore, the poverty can and should be measured by many different methods and still arrive at virtually the same line. Indian PM Modi Meets Queen on 2nd Day of UK Visit

ONUVA - With an average of 5,300 refugees and migrants arriving every day on the borders of Morocco and Spain, the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) highlighted on Monday the urgent need for cooperation. UNHCR also warned that the lack of adequate infrastructure in Morocco is creating tensions between refugees, police and local communities.

Governing Party reports that out of the 80,000 refugees and migrants who have reached Ceuta for the past six months, over half have used Ceuta as their first point of entry in the EU. The UNHCR also warned that the lack of adequate infrastructure in Spain is forcing the EU to respond with increased border controls.

Afghanistan’s Outlook on Current Situation Remains Bleak: Spanta

KABUL — Former National Security Advisor to President Hamid Karzai, Zalmay Khalilzad, has expressed concern about the current situation in Afghanistan, warning that the government’s hold on power is slipping.

Khalilzad said that the government’s hold on power is slipping as the Taliban gains ground. He added that the government needs to take urgent steps to stabilize the situation and reduce the number of casualties.

The government has been struggling to maintain control in some areas, particularly in the north and east, where the Taliban have made significant gains. Khalilzad urged the government to work closely with local leaders and communities to prevent further deterioration.

The situation in Afghanistan remains critical, with several provinces facing intense fighting. The Taliban have been gaining territory, particularly in the eastern parts of the country. The government has been criticized for its inability to effectively combat the Taliban.

Khalilzad’s comments come as the United Nations and international partners continue to work towards a peaceful resolution to the conflict.

The government has been under pressure to take decisive action to address the situation, but progress has been slow. The United Nations has called for an immediate ceasefire and a political solution to the conflict.

Khalilzad emphasized the need for a comprehensive strategy that includes both military and political elements. He called for a renewed commitment from the international community to support the Afghan government.

The Taliban have been gaining ground in recent months, and there are concerns that the situation could escalate further.

Khalilzad’s comments highlight the challenges facing the Afghan government and the international community as they work towards a solution to the conflict.
