GERMANY LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN IN KABUL TO DETER REFUGEES

KABUL — Germany launched a campaign in Afghanistan on Sunday to deter refugees from paying criminal enterprises to organize the long and often deadly journey they would have to take to start a new life in Europe. A couple of posters appeared in the capital Kabul with the message in both Dari and Pashto, the country’s main ethnic languages: Afghanistan: Are you certain?

The MBroadsides include a hinting at a link and a Facebook page called Germany in Afghanistan with information on migration laws, among other points.

"Do not believe the rumours and fake information deliberately spread by human traffickers about allegedly easy trip and the easy life in Germany," the most recent post on the page read Sunday.

"Do not risk your lives by trying a dangerous trip to Germany."
