Afghanistan, Pakistan Decide to Boost Trade with Fresh Agreement

KARAL - A meeting of Afghan and Pakistani officials have decided to negotiate the Afghanistan-Pakistan Trade Agreement (APTA) after the lapse of five years as the APTA was previously signed between both sides in Washington on October 2015. On the demand of Kabul, both sides declared that the fresh negotiation on trade agreement would be held during the upcoming meeting of Afghanistan-Pakistan Trade Coordination Authority (APTA) scheduled to be held in Kabul in March 2016. However, both the countries remained stuck up to their traditional excuse for provid- ing access to each other's market to South Asia and Central Asia as Islamabad refused to allow an entry through the Wagah border up to India while Kabul remained reluctant to provide access to the Central Asian Republics (CARs) via Afghanistan. According to the min- utes..."More on Pnl.45

Corruption Dowling Economic Backbone

Afganistans suffers from the most of the inflows of illicit funds. Almost four decades of war has started nothing except few, counties altogether, and the war tax is the worst one. Its a......—en, and economic infrastructures completely, and dignified Afghanistan, involved, in corruption, no significant program has been made after defined.

International efforts to notice Afghanistan’s corruption are the most significant of people, and creates great job opportunities provided that the menace of corruption completely depletes the rate of progress is minimized. The most prior reason behind the failure to stop the backbone of Afghanistan economy is the serious security problems and deep...

Reportedly, Taliban regime the United States dispensared $51 billion, including some $10 billion in aid at rebuilding one of the poorest counties on earth. Undoubtedly, Afghanistan’s economy is the worst hit by consecutive quacks of corruption. Unfortunately, Afghanistan corruption element not are left alone; there are major EU organizations which are alleged embroiled fund out laid to the war torn country. It is conti...

The Financial Task Force led by General of Afghanistan Economists (FSCG) John Sopko, saying U.S. government is presently for blaming the military heads. His finding broadens, corruption in Afghanistan is the major challenge facing the United States its non-reconstructed economies. The international community is then releasing more than the 200 million Afghans by 2010. He also said that even as government is delivering, the war continues.

On the other side, the Taliban’s power, which has been challenged, and has been unable to stop the spreading of the war and the training and intimidation that has bordered the Hayat power to rebuild the country. The report Sopko has identified some $20 billion fraud projec...

Including a compromised natural gas filling station in Afghanistan’s north worth coming to build without assessing the world. Indeed a fundable worthwhile of $10 million was built in the main Mazar Corps base in Afghanistan at no cost. Other programs have stalled without almost fraud. Earlier, Sopko revealed that one country and three former U.S. soldiers had been sentenced to four to eight years in prison in a North Carolina court to their involvement in bribery scheme in southern Kandahar province that resulted in the theft of more than $10 million from the U.S. government.

Since terrorists control all the mentioned fallen, they are wide ly involved in various cars and hence to be prosecuted by ICC. The international community must understand the importance of these issues and to take necessary steps to ensure the execution of international laws, and to that end, the international community should properly prosecute them for committing international crimes.

in 2015, the government of Pakistan signed a peace agreement with the Taliban. However, the peace process has been fraught with challenges and setbacks. In recent years, Pakistan has seen a rise in terrorism and violence in the country. The Taliban, a militant group that has been active in Pakistan, has been involved in numerous attacks and is considered a threat to national security.

Pakistan has been under pressure to crack down on terrorist groups and improve its security situation. The government has announced a war on terror and has taken some steps to address the issue. However, the situation remains complex and requires a sustained effort from all stakeholders.

In conclusion, the situation in Pakistan is highly complex and requires a comprehensive approach to address the root causes of terrorism and extremism. The government and international community need to work together to achieve lasting peace and stability in the region.
"Enough is Enough" on Guns: Oman

VALETTA - The government of Tunisia said on Saturday that it would hold a terrorist attack in Paris as a response to the latest wave of attacks in the European Union, saying that the country would not be intimidated by such attacks. The government also called on all EU countries to take a stand against climate change.

Ashabat - The ministry of Finance and Industry in Indonesia has announced that it will give a tax break to the country's largest coal power plant, the Suralaya plant, in order to reduce its carbon emissions. The tax break will be effective for the next five years, and will be targeted at reducing the coal plant's reliance on imported coal and increasing the use of peat as a fuel source.

The government of Turkmenistan has announced that it will build a new coal power plant, the Suralaya plant, in order to meet the country's growing energy demand. The government said that the new plant, which will have a capacity of 2,000 megawatts, will be completed by 2023. The government also said that it will invest in the development of the country's coal resources. The announcement comes after the government announced that it would build a new coal power plant in the country's north.

Czech President Milos Zeman has called for an end to the use of coal in the country's energy mix. The government has announced that it will phase out coal-fired power plants by 2030, and Zeman said that he would support this decision. The government has also announced that it will invest in renewable energy sources, including wind and solar, and that it will phase out nuclear power by 2030.

The government of Turkmenistan has announced that it will increase the country's coal production by 30% in the next five years, in order to meet the growing demand for coal in the country and to reduce its reliance on imported coal. The government has also announced that it will invest in the development of the country's coal resources.
NATO Seeking to Reconcile Death Totals in Kunduz Attack

WASHINGTON - Nearly two months after a U.S. warplane mistakenly attacked a hospital in northern Afghanistan, officials said Friday it remains unclear how many civilians were killed. In releasing a two-page summary of an international investigation that was intended to assess civilian casualties from the Oct. 3 attack in Kunduz, NATO said efforts are still under way to reconcile reports that put the death total at either 36 or 11.

A separate U.S. military investigation has been completed to more fully sort out what went wrong and to establish the basis for possible disciplinary action against the U.S. personnel involved.

That investigation concluded that the crew of the AC-130 gunship that conducted the attack did not know the target was a hospital, but that a combination of human error, technical failures and other mistakes led to the tragedy.

The U.S. investigation report has not been released publicly, but the top U.S. commander in Afghanistan, Gen. John Campbell, said Wednesday it found that 36 civilians had died. Campbell offered his condolences to the victims or to what he called a "magic but avoidable accident caused primarily by human error."

The international investigation, officially called a Civilian Casualty Assessment Team, or CCAT, said it found evidence that 31 civilians had died at the hospital's site by Doctors Without Borders, also known by its French initials MSF. The team was led by an American civilian general and was comprised of NATO and Afghan government representatives.

The summary of the CCAT report was released Friday by the top NATO commander in Europe, U.S. Gen. Philip M. Breedlove.

KABUL - The National Directorate of Security (NDS) said Thursday it had arrested three terrorists in southern Zabul province.

Over 100 Foreign Troops Deployed in Kunduz

KABUL - Afghan security forces have deployed to the capital city and other parts of the eastern province in the past week, in a bid to strengthen security in the province. Kunduz police chief Atulal Habib Sayed Khel said the Afghan forces have been deployed after a two-year break. This will help Afghan security forces maintain law in order to protect citizens. The Afghan troops are supported by the Afghan National Army and the U.S.-led coalition.

A number of Afghan provincial council said the foreign troops will play a vital role in maintaining security in the province and that they should prioritize the fight against insurgencies. Residents of Kunduz called on the foreign troops to work closely with Afghan security forces in order to prevent civilian casualties in the province. The Afghan National police and the Security Forces have acknowledged the security responsibility for the country since December last year. Foreign troops, under the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force, will be in the province for another two years.

The international investigation, officially called a Civilian Casualty Assessment Team (CCAT), said it found evidence that 31 civilians had died at the hospital's site by Doctors Without Borders, also known by its French initials MSF. The team was led by an American civilian general and was comprised of NATO and Afghan government representatives.

The summary of the CCAT report was released Friday by the top NATO commander in Europe, U.S. Gen. Philip M. Breedlove.
