Russia Reiterates Anti-Terrorism Assistance to Afghanistan

KARUL - Russian ambassador to Kabul, Alexander Matrosov, in a meeting with Afghan National Security Advisor, Hanif Atmar, on Saturday said that Russian Federation is committed to assist Afghanistan in its fight against terrorism. Atmar said that Afghanistan needs assistance from neighboring and regional countries to respond to the shared threats of terrorism. "Islamic Republic of Afghanistan believes that the suppression of terrorist threat in Afghanistan requires the joint efforts of neighboring countries and the region," he said. Meanwhile, released its country's support for the anti-terrorism policies of Afghanistan saying that his country wants a safe and peaceful Afghanistan (K7)

NATO Reaffirms Military Support to ANSF to Thwart Threats

KARUL - U.S-led NATO coalition on Sunday reaffirmed its commitment to Afghan security forces and said it will not leave the Afghan forces alone on the battlefield. As a result, the coalition's own forces can be focused on the remaining threats in Afghanistan. The U.S-led NATO coalition's decision is a reflection of the government's commitment to thwart the threats in Afghanistan. (More on P5-6)

World Climate Rallies Put Pressure on Paris Summit to Act

PERE—Two of the world’s largest cities, Paris and London, along with other cities around the world, held climate change rallies on Sunday to put pressure on world leaders to take action at the upcoming climate summit in Paris. The events were held to coincide with the United Nations Climate Change Conference in Paris. In total, over 20,00 UK Gov't. Lobby's Opposition to Force Syria Airstrikes Vote

LONDON—Britain’s defence minister on Sunday said the government was “considering” lobbying opposition parties to support airstrikes in Syria in a vote next week. Michael Fallon told BBC’s Andrew Marr Show that “we’ve been talking to Labour, Lib Dems and the SNP, but that the government had “not yet” secured enough support to be sure of winning a vote to extend armed forces in Syria for a year. The Prime Minister David Cameron suffered a humiliation defeat in 2013 when opposition parties, Labour MPs and the Liberal Democrats, stood against the government in the last vote. (More on P6-7)

President Ghani Declares Assets

KARUL - The High Office of Anti-Corruption on Sunday released a report detailing the current and fixed assets of President, Mohammad Ashraf Ghani and First Lady Rula Ghani. According to the report, President Ghani and First Lady Rula Ghani are jointly in possession of the properties which includes $4.85 million in current assets and $16.16 million obtained from the sale of properties belonging to their ancestors in Lebanon and United States. The jewelry in possession of the First Lady is $1.6 million. (More on P7-8)

Tribal Elders in Talks with Taliban to Secure Release of Hostages

KARUL—The Taliban, has not yet launched a military operation to secure the release of the 10 local citizens kidnapped 10 days ago in Zabul, said local officials Sunday. However, according to them, tribal elders are negotiating with the kidnappers and they are jointly in possession of the properties which includes $4.85 million in current assets and $16.16 million obtained from the sale of properties belonging to their ancestors in Lebanon and United States. The jewelry in possession of the First Lady is $1.6 million. (More on P7-8)
Usman's 69 Runs Helps Afghanistan Beat Oman in First UAE-2020

UAE - The Afghanistan national cricket team defeated Oman by 27 runs in the first Twenty20 International of Afghanistan Tour of United Arab Emirates.

Usman Ashraf, who scored a target of 156 runs in 30 overs against Oman, scored the 69 runs in the match. His century hit the target set by the same team. Afghanistan has won the toss and elected to field first. Despite losing opener Mohammad Shahzad after 44 runs, Usman Ashraf remained unbeaten for 54 runs.

The 23-year-old star was bowled out after scoring 69 runs. He was the pick of the bowlers with figures of 4-25 in 13 overs.

5 IS Affiliate Militants Killed in Nangarhar

Gunmen Kill Former Director of Hajj and Religious Affairs

KABUL - Uzbek-origin gun- man has killed the former director of Hajj and Religious Affairs, according to government officials.

Reports suggest that Sayed Safi Sarwarkh how was returning home from negociating over the alleged embezzlement of aid money, had been sent to the provincial capital of Nimroz, last night. Mohammad- reza, a police officer of Nino said the attack was carried out by two armed men in a motorcycle. He said after the incident security officials arrived at the site. The bullet attack on Sarwar had been confirmed for informal people and government officials. And many of the latest news had been released. (Kabul)

3 ANA Soldiers Killed in Separate Attacks

KABUL - A total of three soldiers have been killed in Afghanistan since early Saturday. The security force's official said that all Afghan National Army personnel were killed in separate landmine attacks across Afghanistan over the past 24 hours. The ministry said in a statement.

Two Tanf family members were killed and a third man was injured, were captured during joint military operations in different provinces over the same period, the ministry said. The soldiers were killed and injured on the side of the military investors.

Some have since then, as they have as- sumed the role of the driver, in order to coordinate with the authorities of Nato and US.

Eight unidentified men Kill a Teacher and His Son in Uruzgan Khazan

SARC-UL joined 80 angry families near Sar- pul. Located in Ghor, the operation was launched by Afghan security forces more than a month ago and covers several districts in mountainous eastern part of the country.

The Afghan district, which has been regarded as ISP's stronghold, has been the scene of heavy clashes between ISP milita- nts and security forces over the past couple of months. The militant group has yet to make comments. (Kabul)

Sarc-Ul - At least eight teachers in Sar- pul, were killed in a military operation, according to security sources. Sar- pul. Located in Ghor, the operation was launched by Afghan security forces more than a month ago and covers several districts in mountainous eastern part of the country.

The Afghan district, which has been regarded as ISP's stronghold, has been the scene of heavy clashes between ISP milita- nts and security forces over the past couple of months. The militant group has yet to make comments. (Kabul)
Role of Media in Afghanistan

By Dilbar Shazi

Media has a vital role in democratic countries. Its role is to act as guardians of democracy and to be a voice for the voiceless. In Afghanistan, it is considered as one of the pillars of the state and is expected to play a crucial role in enlightening the people about the will of the government and society. Over the years, the Afghan media has faced many challenges, but they have an opportunity to reconsider their undertakings and try to serve the people. It is necessary that the media understands its role, and if they fail to do so, they will lose the trust of the people.

Apart from scrutinizing the government, the media has an imperative role in developing public opinion and at the same time, providing timely, information and knowledge to the masses. Trust in the media is rapidly growing, and when the media is trusted, it can change the behavior of the audience and make the people know about their true enemies and their true friends. The Afghan media has always been trusted by the Afghan people.

However, there is an important aspect of the fact that has not been discussed by media and that is the role of women. The truth in pieces, promulgated both by national and international organizations, has been the misunderstanding and misapplication of the rights of women. They have not been able to declare the war against terrorism and that is why the war against terrorism is failing. The war against terrorism simply means that there are two parties to the conflict, but the war against terrorism is not only against those who do the war and those who they do what they want.

Due to certain political complications and at the same time mis-understandings, the role of the Afghan media is not always clear. Yes, definitely from traditional point of view there are different factors in Taliban, but they are one as well. They, as can be observed, are divided and are divided; in this war, Afghanistan is a friendly country to the international community and the second party is composed of a different factor. The role of the Afghan media is not always clear.

The role of the Afghan media is not always clear. Through media, the Afghan media could be able to bring people together and to understand the current situation and the events. The Afghan media does not only have to fight against terrorism and against the war, but also to support and to help those who are in need and to bring peace to the region.

It is important for media to see the truth as a whole and to try to understand the situation from different angles. The Afghan media is playing an important role in the war against terrorism and in the war against the Taliban. It is not the duty of media to pursue the will of the politicians, but to pursue the will of the people. If we can have a complete truth that Afghanistan has been influenced by hardship, there is no one to understand the will of the people. Afghanistan is not the real party to the war against terrorism, it is not the real party to the war against the Taliban, and it is not the real party to the war against the war against terrorism.

The Afghan media is the role of the Afghan media. Through media, the Afghan media could be able to support the common people in understanding the current situation and the events. The Afghan media does not only have to fight against terrorism and against the war, but also to support and to help those who are in need and to bring peace to the region.

The Afghan media is not always clear. Through media, the Afghan media could be able to bring people together and to understand the current situation and the events. The Afghan media does not only have to fight against terrorism and against the war, but also to support and to help those who are in need and to bring peace to the region.

By Riccardo Hausmann

The Import of Exports

One way to increase this is to improve quality and productivity. Another is to lower wages, the higher the productivity and the quality, the lower the wages. This is a very effective strategy for exports.

Saying that a country or region's economy is more productive or competitive because it has a low-wage economy is misleading. The real measure of productivity is the amount of goods and services produced per hour of work.

In many cases, countries that produce products for the world market tend to have lower wages than the ones that produce for the domestic market. This is because wages are determined by supply and demand, and in most cases, the demand for workers in the domestic market is lower than in the export market. This means that workers in the domestic market are paid less, which in turn lowers the overall productivity of the country.

A similar transformation can be seen in every successful non-OPEC developing country. The success of a country or region is often related to its ability to attract foreign investment and to increase exports.

This transformation has been observed in several countries, such as Singapore, Turkey, and Brazil.

It is important to note that not all countries are affected by this transformation. For example, in 2015, 27% of Thailand's export hysteresis was caused by China's rise in wages, while in 2010, this share was 49%. However, today, this share has decreased to 30%, which is still higher than 20%.

A similar transformation can be seen in every successful non-OPEC developing country. The success of a country or region is often related to its ability to attract foreign investment and to increase exports.

This transformation has been observed in several countries, such as Singapore, Turkey, and Brazil.

It is important to note that not all countries are affected by this transformation. For example, in 2015, 27% of Thailand's export hysteresis was caused by China's rise in wages, while in 2010, this share was 49%. However, today, this share has decreased to 30%, which is still higher than 20%.

A similar transformation can be seen in every successful non-OPEC developing country. The success of a country or region is often related to its ability to attract foreign investment and to increase exports.

This transformation has been observed in several countries, such as Singapore, Turkey, and Brazil.

It is important to note that not all countries are affected by this transformation. For example, in 2015, 27% of Thailand's export hysteresis was caused by China's rise in wages, while in 2010, this share was 49%. However, today, this share has decreased to 30%, which is still higher than 20%.

A similar transformation can be seen in every successful non-OPEC developing country. The success of a country or region is often related to its ability to attract foreign investment and to increase exports.

This transformation has been observed in several countries, such as Singapore, Turkey, and Brazil.

It is important to note that not all countries are affected by this transformation. For example, in 2015, 27% of Thailand's export hysteresis was caused by China's rise in wages, while in 2010, this share was 49%. However, today, this share has decreased to 30%, which is still higher than 20%.

A similar transformation can be seen in every successful non-OPEC developing country. The success of a country or region is often related to its ability to attract foreign investment and to increase exports.

This transformation has been observed in several countries, such as Singapore, Turkey, and Brazil.

It is important to note that not all countries are affected by this transformation. For example, in 2015, 27% of Thailand's export hysteresis was caused by China's rise in wages, while in 2010, this share was 49%. However, today, this share has decreased to 30%, which is still higher than 20%.

A similar transformation can be seen in every successful non-OPEC developing country. The success of a country or region is often related to its ability to attract foreign investment and to increase exports.

This transformation has been observed in several countries, such as Singapore, Turkey, and Brazil.

It is important to note that not all countries are affected by this transformation. For example, in 2015, 27% of Thailand's export hysteresis was caused by China's rise in wages, while in 2010, this share was 49%. However, today, this share has decreased to 30%, which is still higher than 20%.
Terrorism Issue Central in Biden Meeting with Italian PM

ROME - U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris discussed terrorism and other issues with her Italian counterpart during talks in Rome on Friday that were said to have touched on the administration's efforts to counter Iran and Russia.

The meeting comes amid tensions between the United States and Iran, which has been accused of supporting terrorism in the Middle East. The two leaders are believed to have discussed ways to address the threat posed by Iran's missile program and its support for militants in the region.

The talks are part of a broader effort by the Biden administration to improve relations with Rome and other European allies. The United States has also been working to address concerns about the rise of Russian and Chinese influence in the region.

EUROPESE OMROEP:

EU Seeks Turkish Help to Slow Migrants for Cash in Mediterranean Crises

The EU seeks help from Turkey to slow down the flow of migrants into the Mediterranean, a crisis that has been a major issue for the region.

Turkey is a major source of migrants heading to Europe, and the EU has been working to find ways to slow down the flow. The EU has offered Turkey financial aid in exchange for helping to control the flow of migrants.

The EU hopes that Turkey will help slow down the flow of migrants into Europe, as well as help with other issues such as economic development and trade.

Turkey Preparing to hand over Body of Pilot to Russia: PM

ANKARA - The Turkish Prime Minister Binali Yildirim said on Tuesday that Turkey has decided to hand over the body of a Turkish pilot killed in a crash in Syria to Russia.

The pilot was killed in a crash in Syria while flying a Russian-made Sukhoi SU-24 fighter jet. The crash occurred on Tuesday, and the pilot was later identified as Ugur Yilmaz.

Turkey has said that it will hand over the pilot's body to Russia, and the announcement comes as tensions continue to escalate between the two countries over the conflict in Syria.

42 IS Militants Killed in Clashes in Al-Sharqia in Western Iraq

IRAQ - A field commanders for the Free Syrian Army said on Thursday that 42 Islamic State militants were killed in clashes in Al-Sharqia in Western Iraq.

The field commanders said that the clashes were part of a larger offensive by the Free Syrian Army against Islamic State groups in the area.

The Free Syrian Army has been fighting against Islamic State groups in the region, and the clashes come as tensions continue to escalate between the two sides.

Sharif Leaves for Paris to Attend UN Climate Summit

PARIS - Sharif, the Prime Minister of Afghanistan, said on Thursday that he would attend the United Nations Climate Change Conference in Paris.

The conference is set to begin on December 14th and is expected to attract representatives from around the world.

Sharif said that he would attend the conference to raise awareness of Afghanistan's climate change challenges and to advocate for action to address the issue.

The conference is expected to be a major event, with leaders from around the world gathering to discuss ways to address climate change.

AIDS Patients say its time for a Global Response

RENNAISSANCE - AIDS patients are calling for a global response to the HIV epidemic.

The call comes as new research suggests that the virus is spreading more rapidly than ever before.

The patients are calling for increased funding and support for HIV research and treatment.

The call is part of a broader effort to raise awareness of the HIV epidemic and to advocate for action to address the issue.
3 Million Acres of Lands Siezed

Government Appoints Five New Ambassadors

Experts Advise Against Establishment of Militia Groups

Pak, Afghan Tensions Can Hit Energy Corridor

Initiative: FPCCI

ANSF Fighting Enemies with High Moral: Gen. Abdullah

ADB to Build Five Slaughterhouses in Afghanistan