Afghan Migrants will Return Home: Ghani

STOCKHOLM – President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani who has visited Sweden has stated that those Afghans migrants who aren’t accepted by the Swedish Government will be returned home.

Swedish Prime Minister has stated that Afghans migrants specially those Afghans migrants who are under-age cause serious problems for both countries. Afghan migrants’ issue has been on the agenda of the president. Ghani officials trip to Europe.

MPs Blame Kabul Municipality of Craft Amid Garbage Crisis

KARUL – As the continual pile up in Kabul, MPs in the Wolesi Jirga (Lower House of Parliament) on Saturday accused the acting mayor of Kabul’s Timur Tasnim an MP and have called on the government to address the issue.

50% of Buildings Construct Illegally in Kabul: Acting Mayor

KARUL – Lower house of the parliament members have accused the Kabul acting mayor of Kabul’s Timur Tasnim an MP and have called on the government to address the issue.

An Afghan woman looks at the ruins of the Buddha statues destroyed by the Taliban militants in Bamiyan province, central Afghanistan, on December 22, 2015. Bamiyan was once a major tourist destination and a prosperous town in Afghanistan in the pre-war period some three and a half decades ago. (Associated Press)
ACKU - Hundreds of Taliban rebels were killed or wounded in recent fighting between rival factions in southern Afghanistan. The exact number of casualties was not confirmed. The Taliban leader, Mullah Mohammad Omar, was reportedly wounded in the fighting.

Kiwi Immigration Minister's About-Turn Delights Afghan Interpreters

WELLINGTON - An Afghan interpreter suffering post-traumatic stress disorder may soon be reunited with his family after New Zealand immigration Minister Michael Woodhouse announced plans to bring him home. The interpreter, who is one of the many Afghan interpreters who worked for New Zealand forces in Afghanistan, was badly injured in a roadside bomb attack and has been treated in hospital in Kabul. The announcement is expected to be welcomed by Afghan interpreters who have worked for New Zealand forces.

7 Afghan Soldiers Killed in Attacks within Days

KARUL - Seven Afghan soldiers were killed in separate attacks across Afghanistan within the last two days. The attacks were carried out by the Taliban and the Afghan security forces. The deaths bring the total number of Afghan soldiers killed in the past month to 50. The attacks highlight the ongoing conflict in Afghanistan and the challenges faced by the Afghan security forces.

Kiwi Immigration Minister's About-Turn Delights Afghan Interpreters

WELLINGTON - An Afghan interpreter suffering post-traumatic stress disorder may soon be reunited with his family after New Zealand immigration Minister Michael Woodhouse announced plans to bring him home. The interpreter, who is one of the many Afghan interpreters who worked for New Zealand forces in Afghanistan, was badly injured in a roadside bomb attack and has been treated in hospital in Kabul. The announcement is expected to be welcomed by Afghan interpreters who have worked for New Zealand forces.

7 Afghan Soldiers Killed in Attacks within Days

KARUL - Seven Afghan soldiers were killed in separate attacks across Afghanistan within the last two days. The attacks were carried out by the Taliban and the Afghan security forces. The deaths bring the total number of Afghan soldiers killed in the past month to 50. The attacks highlight the ongoing conflict in Afghanistan and the challenges faced by the Afghan security forces.

Kiwi Immigration Minister's About-Turn Delights Afghan Interpreters

WELLINGTON - An Afghan interpreter suffering post-traumatic stress disorder may soon be reunited with his family after New Zealand immigration Minister Michael Woodhouse announced plans to bring him home. The interpreter, who is one of the many Afghan interpreters who worked for New Zealand forces in Afghanistan, was badly injured in a roadside bomb attack and has been treated in hospital in Kabul. The announcement is expected to be welcomed by Afghan interpreters who have worked for New Zealand forces.

7 Afghan Soldiers Killed in Attacks within Days

KARUL - Seven Afghan soldiers were killed in separate attacks across Afghanistan within the last two days. The attacks were carried out by the Taliban and the Afghan security forces. The deaths bring the total number of Afghan soldiers killed in the past month to 50. The attacks highlight the ongoing conflict in Afghanistan and the challenges faced by the Afghan security forces.

Kiwi Immigration Minister's About-Turn Delights Afghan Interpreters

WELLINGTON - An Afghan interpreter suffering post-traumatic stress disorder may soon be reunited with his family after New Zealand immigration Minister Michael Woodhouse announced plans to bring him home. The interpreter, who is one of the many Afghan interpreters who worked for New Zealand forces in Afghanistan, was badly injured in a roadside bomb attack and has been treated in hospital in Kabul. The announcement is expected to be welcomed by Afghan interpreters who have worked for New Zealand forces.

7 Afghan Soldiers Killed in Attacks within Days

KARUL - Seven Afghan soldiers were killed in separate attacks across Afghanistan within the last two days. The attacks were carried out by the Taliban and the Afghan security forces. The deaths bring the total number of Afghan soldiers killed in the past month to 50. The attacks highlight the ongoing conflict in Afghanistan and the challenges faced by the Afghan security forces.
Terrorist-Run Afghanistan

By Hussainullah Zia

Afghan nation suffers from political instability and terrorist outrages with the Taliban's control continuing unabated. A wall of mistrust between nation and state has grown higher. A great number of Afghans now feel out of control and insecure.

At the moment 40 percent of terrorists who are fighting against us are being trained and nourished by the killers, and of potential inspiration by terrorist formations. They have attacked several times and in every place, committing atrocities and atrocities.

The government in its statement called the Afghan President himself to stop the weight of the Taliban. He has not been able to stop the weight of the Taliban. He has been unable to stop the weight of the Taliban.

On June 13, 2013, the Taliban announced an agreement to the government to join the peace process. In late 2013, the Taliban announced an agreement to the government to join the peace process. In late 2013, the Taliban announced an agreement to the government to join the peace process. In late 2013, the Taliban announced an agreement to the government to join the peace process.

The reorganization, which has taken place in Pakistan, has led to a change in the government support for the Taliban. The Taliban, which has taken place in Pakistan, has led to a change in the government support for the Taliban. The Taliban, which has taken place in Pakistan, has led to a change in the government support for the Taliban.

The peace process between the government and the Taliban is ongoing. The peace process between the government and the Taliban is ongoing. The peace process between the government and the Taliban is ongoing.

Hard Work Needed

By Muhammad Rassol Shah

There may be many frightening factors in one's life. But we should not be afraid of them. If we do not fear them, we may be able to overcome them. If we do not fear them, we may be able to overcome them. If we do not fear them, we may be able to overcome them.

Every factor adds more to the intensity of this fear and terror. People are afraid of the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown. People are afraid of the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown.

Most of the things that are mentioned or discussed in the media are harmful to the people. In this regard, there are very few who try to make the defense of the situation with a positive and ingenuous approach.

On the other hand, if we observe the situation with an open mind, keeping all one's fears about the background of the people. This has been the case for the last few years and it is the same in the media. It is the same in the media. It is the same in the media.

One factor that has been in the foreground is the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown. People are afraid of the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown, the fear of the unknown.

There are many complaints against the attitude of a country and its prevalent system. In a society where violence is the rule, it is not possible to bring back a normal society.

There are many complaints against the attitude of a country and its prevalent system. In a society where violence is the rule, it is not possible to bring back a normal society.

This is one of the frightening factors that most people are afraid of. There are many complaints against the attitude of a country and its prevalent system. In a society where violence is the rule, it is not possible to bring back a normal society.
In Afghanistan, 9 killed in land mine explosion

11/4

The United States, completing a decade
in Afghanistan, has recorded a record number of Afghanistan's dead in a single year—1,000 people. One Taliban insider is informed that the 1,000 people killed in the fighting across Afghanistan are almost all civilians. The Taliban has reportedly been responsible for 85% of the deaths, while the Afghan government has been responsible for 15%.

In Pakistan, nine people were killed in a suicide blast in the city of Jalalabad. The blast was claimed by the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL). The attack was the latest in a series of attacks targeting government officials and security forces in the region.

In Afghanistan, the government has stepped up its efforts to fight extremism and terrorism. The military has launched several operations against Taliban fighters, and the government has warned that it will not tolerate any form of violence.

In Pakistan, the government has also been proactive in responding to the Taliban threat. The government has launched several military operations against Taliban fighters, and has also worked to improve relations with the Afghan government.

In the United States, President Joe Biden has announced that he will withdraw all US troops from Afghanistan by September 11. This decision was met with mixed reactions, with some praising the move as a step towards ending America's longest war, while others expressing concern over the potential for a surge in terrorist activity.

In Afghanistan, the Taliban has been quick to respond to Biden's announcement. The group has said that it will not accept the decision, and has threatened to launch a new campaign of violence.

Although the situation in Afghanistan is complex and challenging, it is clear that the US and the international community must work together to find a peaceful solution to the conflict. The US must continue to support the Afghan government and the Afghan people, while ensuring that the region remains stable and secure.

In Pakistan, the government must continue to work with the US and other international partners to address the threat posed by the Taliban. The government must also continue to work to improve relations with Afghanistan, and to find a way to end the region's long war.
U.S. Refused Guarantees for Ukraine's Liabilities: Russia

The ministry added that Russia had offered Ukraine better terms than those the International Monetary Fund had offered Ukraine is restructuring its debt as well as around 100 other countries with which it is locked in bilateral loan programs. The announcement came after the International Monetary Fund said on Monday that it was seeking to improve its relationship with Ukraine, which is expected to receive the first of a $1.5 billion bailout disbursement next month.

In other news, Russian President Vladimir Putin signed a law on Tuesday that will allow the government to impose sanctions on countries that recognize Ukraine's control of Crimea.

Obama Insists US 'will not be Terrorized' by IS Hailes Attackers

The United States is not going to be terrorized by Islamic State, President Barack Obama declared on Wednesday, as his administration seeks to reassert American military might in the Middle East.

Obama said that the United States was prepared to do whatever it took to protect its interests and allies in the region, including through military action. But he also emphasized that the United States would not be "terrorized" by the militants, who have seized control of large swaths of territory in Iraq and Syria.

"We are not going to be terrorized," Obama said in a statement after meeting with his national security team. "We have a responsibility to protect our allies and our interests."

Obama said that the United States was prepared to use military force if necessary, including through targeted strikes against the militants. He added that "we will not be terrorized by this threat."

Turkish Energy Projects Unhinged by War with Russia: Erdogan

Turkey's economy minister said on Wednesday that the war in Syria was causing significant disruption to Turkey's energy projects, including a proposed pipeline that would bring gas from Russia.

"There is a serious blockage of energy projects due to the war in Syria," Berat Albayrak, the economy minister, told reporters. "The war has caused a problem for Turkey's energy projects, including the proposed pipeline from Russia."

The war in Syria has caused the price of gas to rise, leading to a drop in Turkey's energy exports to Europe. Erdogan has said that Turkey would seek to diversify its energy sources, including through the pipeline from Russia.

Turkish Stream natural gas pipeline -- which would transport gas from Turkey to Europe -- had been delayed by the war.

In a statement, Erdogan said that the war had "created a problem" for Turkey's energy projects. "We are seeking to diversify our energy sources, including through the pipeline from Russia," he said.

Erdogan also said that Turkey was seeking to increase its energy exports to Europe, despite the drop in demand caused by the war.

In an interview with the Turkish newspaper Milli Savunma, Erdogan said that Turkey was seeking to increase its energy exports to Europe, despite the drop in demand caused by the war.

"We are seeking to diversify our energy sources, including through the pipeline from Russia," he said. "We are trying to increase our energy exports to Europe, despite the drop in demand caused by the war."
Afghan Taliban Release Audio Message of Mullah Mansour: Spokesman

The Afghan Taliban released an audio message on Friday in which Mullah Mansour declared that he was "victorious" by Afghan intelligence agents as part of its propaganda efforts.

In the audio message, Mansour said, "We are going to have a part of this process." He also addressed the Central Asian Republics and the Islamic Republic of Iran, saying, "We have seen the media reports. We are not aware of this incident. However, we have noted that Taliban spokesmen have denied it after any such tainted video took place." Mansour said, "Khalid launched his warning on Thursday." (Din@d)

KARUL - President US Ambassador to Afghanistan Zalmay Khalilzad and Pakistan's ambassador to Washington discussed the situation in Kabul and the Hugrat network.

Speaking to Tolo News, Khalilzad said Pakistan should not be used as a base for insurgents in the Afghan war and that it has to work towards a peaceful solution.

"This shows that the lack of a peaceful solution in the Afghan government has added to the number of American soldiers in the war and that the government is aware that this is not a solution," he added.

"Without the help of Pakistan, the terrorist groups would not be able to operate in Afghanistan in ways that they are doing now and they would not have been able to threaten the Afghan people," Khalilzad said.

"Pakistan is the center or capital of the groups - whether they are in Islamabad or in Quetta. There is no doubt that Pakistan government's efforts have been on the line to eliminate the Taliban and the Hugrat network," he stressed.

He went on to say, "We are working with the US government, and the US government is also working with us. We hope that Pakistan will make a strong and lasting contribution to peace in Afghanistan and that the Taliban will be active in embracing the peace process, "he added.

"I hope and pray that the Afghan government and the US government work together for a lasting peace in Afghanistan."

"I am confident that with the support of the US government and the Afghan government, we can achieve lasting peace in Afghanistan," Khalilzad said.

In the audio message, Mansour said, "I have been greeted by the hand of the Taliban leaders during envelopes that I was handed over to their mosque in Wardak province."

"I have ordered "relief group" officials to provide treatment for the injured and necessary facilities for families of victims."

"A high-ranking government delegation led by MoD (Ministry of Defense) has been dispatched to thoroughly look into the incident and report it to the president," his office said in a statement.

"The Taliban has declared a cease-fire in Zabul province," the statement said.

"A group of Taliban leaders has gone to Zabul province," the statement said.

An Afghan man named by the remains of the Buddha statues destroyed by Taliban militants in Bamyan province, central Afghanistan, on December 10, 2013, was once a major brutality during the US-led military operation in Kandahar. His name has become synonymous in the Afghan war against the Taliban in the Afghan war in the 2000s. (Xinhua/Li Jiaxin)