NDS Discovers Weapon Cache in Logar

KABUL — The Afghan National Directorate of Security has discovered a weapon cache in an Afghan province, seized a large cache of weapons and arrested four suspected Taliban members, according to a statement from NDS.

The NDS said that a large weapons cache was found in the vicinity of a NDS base in Logar province. The statement said that the NDS had launched a sweep operation in the area and discovered the weapons cache.

The weapons cache reportedly contained a large number of weapons, including guns, ammunition, explosives, and other military supplies. The NDS said that the weapons were meant for use by Taliban fighters in the area.

The NDS also said that four suspected Taliban members were arrested during the operation. The statement said that the NDS had established a strong presence in the region and was committed to disrupting the supply of weapons to the Taliban.

The NDS said that the operation had been conducted in coordination with the Afghan National Army and the Afghan National Police. It said that the NDS would continue to conduct similar operations to disrupt the supply of weapons to the Taliban.

The NDS said that the operation was part of a broader strategy to disrupt the supply of weapons to the Taliban and to prevent them from using them to launch attacks against Afghan security forces and civilians.

The NDS said that it was committed to ensuring the safety and security of the people of Afghanistan and would continue to take all necessary measures to prevent the Taliban from acquiring and using weapons.
The Crimes of the Youth

September 2015 marks the 10th anniversary of the Taliban’s takeover of Afghanistan. The conflict in Afghanistan has been marked by violence, human rights abuses, and corruption. The situation has continued to deteriorate, with the number of civilian deaths and injuries increasing. The situation is complicated by the presence of a number of armed groups, including the Taliban, the Afghan government forces, and various ethnic and tribal groups. This has led to a significant number of refugees and internally displaced persons. The conflict has also had a severe impact on the economy, with prices of basic goods rising and access to healthcare and education becoming increasingly difficult. The United Nations has called for an immediate ceasefire and a political solution to the conflict. The international community has expressed its support for a negotiated solution, but progress has been slow. The situation remains critical, and there is a need for continued efforts to achieve a peaceful settlement. For more information, please visit the website of the United Nations Human Rights Council.

Security forces in Syria have killed six militants in the province of Idlib since Friday. Clashes broke out early on Tuesday in Idlib, and one government soldier was killed, according to a monitor that tracks violence in Syria. The fighting came as the country gears up for a new round of peace talks in Geneva next week. The talks are aimed at finding a political solution to the six-year conflict that has left thousands dead and displaced millions.

Military officials said that the latest attacks were targeting the US military base at Ain al-Asad in Iraq and the US Air Force base at Al Udeid in Qatar. The attacks came when US troops were training Afghan security forces as part of a program to support the Afghan military.

Kerry said that the talks were meant to build upon previous rounds of talks and that they would continue until a final agreement was reached. Kerry also said that the talks would be held in person and that they would be conducted in a “fair and equal manner.”

The talks are expected to last for up to five days and will include representatives from Afghanistan, Pakistan, and the United States. The talks are aimed at reaching a deal that would see the US military withdraw from Afghanistan, with the Afghan government taking control of the security situation.

The talks came as US forces in Afghanistan were facing increased threats from Taliban fighters and other insurgents.

Afghan Peace Talks Likely to Resume Soon

KARL - The suspended dialogue between the Afghan government and the Taliban is expected to resume in a few weeks, senior diplomats and officials in Pakistan have said.

The broader understanding for resuming the peace process was said to be reached during a visit to Islamabad last week by a high-level delegation from Kabul.

But details, including the timing, will be worked out by the visiting Chief of Army Staff Gen Raheel Sharif’s forthcoming visit to Kabul in coming days, reported Pakistan media.

All sides, in their background discussions with Pakistan media, indicated that it could be a matter of weeks before the Mazar-i-Sharif process, which was derailed in July after a short, would be relaunched.
